Hazard Summary

A fast-moving forest fire in southern France near Ribaute, close to Narbonne, has already destroyed 4,000 hectares since it broke out on Tuesday afternoon. Authorities in the Aude department report that around 30 homes and a campsite were evacuated, with two people injured. Nearly 980 firefighters are battling the blaze with support from 14 aircraft and two helicopters. Several roads have been closed, and the region is under a red alert for forest fires due to extreme heat, with Météo-France warning of a very high fire risk. County has burned around 401 acres and is 50% contained, with most evacuation warnings lifted.
